

FOLLETT ACCESS

NMSU Grants offers a new integrated textbook program, Follett Inclusive Access, that will make some course materials available on the first day of class. Course materials will be available immediately in digital format at a reduced cost to students. Students are charged for course materials when they register for the course, just like tuition. Materials in this format can be provided at significant cost savings to the student, given the predictability of demand and the consistency of the content.

Students will be able to access most needed electronic textbooks and learning materials without paying anything more out of pocket on the first day of class. Students wishing to opt out of this program for the semester and purchase materials on their own will be given the opportunity to do so before the start of the term. Digital materials are provided directly through links into Canvas where they can be accessed immediately on computers and mobile devices, and physical materials are available from the bookstore on the first day of class.
